Improve the Herd. From the National Stockman.]

Breeders who wish to advance by improving their herds have an eye to the quality of the pigs as soon as they come, watching the

soon as they come, watching the development of each one daily, this being the only way in which a correct estimate can be made of their future value.

The breeder who has used the right kind of a male on a good quality of sows can advance with the least cost by selecting the sows from his own herd each year. This is the safest way to reach uniformity in appearance and quality. It should be determined by weaning time in most instances which are the best individuals. The sows should be of as high a standard as is within the reach of the breeder, and in all respects as near alike as possible. If the inferior parts are the same in all it will be much easier to correct them in the aff-spring by the selection of one male than if the weak points were different in each sow. If one sow is inferior in the head, and another lacking in the ham, and another in the back, it cannot be expected to overcome these faults by the use of one boar; for it is hardly possible to find a hoar with more and the content of the correct of the case of the expected to overcome these faults by the use of one boar; for it is hardly possible to find a hoar with more and the case of the extraordinate and the seales have seen in all it will be use of one boar; for it is hardly possible to find a hoar with more and the case of the extraordinate and the case of the case and cas without warning. They should banish this alarming symptom and cure the disease by using Dr. Fliou's Heart Remedy. At all druggists, or J. J.
Mack & Co., 9 and 11 Front street, San Francisco. of one boar; for it is hardly possible to find a boar with marked excellence in all these points. Even were it possible to find such a one he would in all probability be above the average of the herd in which he is found.

This brings up another point that must be considered. It is not sufficient that the individual himself possesses these good qualities, but his ancestors should have them. and the greater the number of generations of which they have been striking characteristics the greater his power to transmit to his offsprings. If the herd of brood sows lack quality in but one point, and the breeder knows of a well-established herd that possesses excellence in this point, he may be reasonably sure of improving this point by selecting a male from this herd. It is too much to expect to make these changes at one stroke. The male may have wonderful power o reproduce himself, but the failings of the dam still course through the veins of the offspring, and will crop out in the second and many succeeding generations The breeder, to make a valuable improvement, must have his ideal animal-such an ideal as only can be reached by experience and sound judgment. Then he must have the pluck to stick to his ideal; must have sufficient liberality to pay for what he needs to work out that kind of an animal.

To make his selections intelligently he must know the quality of the herd from which he selects, whether choice animals are the rule or exceptions. The most excellent parts must be considered first-those that bring the most on the block and counter. When these are obtained then add on the faucy, but make the latter secondary.

Idaho Stock Ranges.

We often hear stockmen and others say that the country would be all right so far as the range is concerned, were it not for the drouth that has hung over this country for the past three years. While there is some truth in that view of the situation, there is another, which to our mind, says an exchange, conforms nearer to the truth. It is this, that the ranges have all been and are now overstocked. That the constant nipping of the grass, the tread and wear of thousands of hoofs over it. of horses, cattle and sheep, have worn it out, in fact, killed it. Owyhee has been a fine stock range, and there would be yet a good range for a limited number of stock, but when it is made the grazing grounds for innumerable bands of sheep and horses from Montana, Nevada, Utah, Idaho and Oregon, it ceases to be a range upon which they can all live and grow fat. Hence we say that Owyhee county is overstocked, and never will be the stock country it once was, until it ceases to be overstocked. Stockmen who would save their cattle from starvation, and themselves from ruin, must raise fodder with which to feed them during the winter months at least, and until grass becomes plentiful in the spring.

INTERESTING LETTER FROM WASHINGTON, D. C.

Dr. George Vasey, Betanist of the Agricultural Department Heard From on the New Fodder Plant -He Especially Recommends That Native Plants in Dry Regious neceive Careful Trial for Cuitivation - White Sage Val-uable - A Duty Incumbent on Every Mancher in the West.

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 28. EDITOR GAZETTE:- I bave read with considerable interest the articles published recently by the GA-ZETTE concerning the growing of grasses and forage plants in Nevada, for it is certainly one of the great questions to be solved before a marked prosperity of a continuo s character dawns upon thes gebrush State, the district being arid and water for irrigating purposes scarce.

I called upon Dr. George Vasey. Botanist of the Agricultural Department, the other day, and had another interesting talk with him concerning the matter. Right here let me say that as this subject is one of close study with the doctor, he is unquestionably one of the best friends the arid West has today among the officials in the National Departments. I showed him several articles Lhad clipped from the GAZETTE on the discussion of the good qualities of sainfoin and aspersette and their adaptability to the climate and soil of the Great Basin region. After scanning them losely he said:

"Several western papers, during a few months past, have had notices of a new fodder piaut called by the Germans esparcet, as being peculiarly adapted to cultivation in the arid' discricts of Utah, Nevada, etc. The same plant is called sainfoin in England, where it has long been cultivated. An English writer, named Parkinson, in 1640 says that sainfoin is generally known to be a singular food for cattle, causing them to give a store of milk." Experiments made by the Duke of Belford, 60 years ago, showed that on a clayey loam sainfoin was inferior to he red clover, but on chalky and graveily soils there was abundant proof of the superior value of sainfoin. In Mr. Young's Annals we are incormed that sainfoin is allowed on all mands to be an admirable improvement on limestone rocks and chalk lowns. It is a perennal plant, and ment on limestone rocks and chalk lowns. It is a perennial plant, and produces but little herbage the first year, but where established it will last for 16 to 20 years. Mr. Martin J. Sutton, a recent English writer, says it has been cultivated in England for over 200 years. He says that it is established as the same of the same and even dreads soil which, although try, rests upon a wet subsoil. Sain-oin has received several trials in the Eastern States, but without success— probably from the experiments hav-ng been made upon unsuitable sol. there is certainly encouragement to make trial of this plant in dry and "There are some native plants in the

"There are some native plants in the lry regions which should receive areful trial for cultivation. Among hese are several species of lupins, several kinds of lupins are cultivated in Europe for fodder, but these are nostly annuals, whereas in Utah, Nevads, Colorado, etc., there are several perennial lupins which grow two othice feet high, and produce a large quantity of foliage. These g ow on mor and dry soil, and should receive areful attention as to their value for pasturage and for dry fydder. All the ranchmen in the mountain r g on snow the value of the plant called Winter-lat or white sage, bosanically a plant of the pig-weed family called Eurotia lanata. It will grow in sikall so is, and if it be as valuable as stated, why should it not be cultivated on barren wastes that are now worthless? There are several other p and sof that region which are also cated white sage, chiefly species of Atriplex, which are a common resort of cattle in the winter. Do not these also deserve some consideration for cultivation on parent alkaline soils? Some of the native grasses also should be made the winter-fat or white sage, botanically oairen aikaline soils? Some of the oaive grasses also should be made the subject of experiments. Some of them are nutritive and productive even on try soils, and if valuable in a wild state they could be made much more so by cuttivation.

The doctor further said that his division has in press a bulletin on the grasses of the arid districts, being partly a report of an it vestigation conducted under the charge of the Commissioner, and partly of more specific accounts of the grasses and forage plants, with figures, which will enable farmers and others to identify them. PLATFORM AND RESOLUTIONS

The following platform and resolutions were adopted by the Republican State Convention, which convened at Winnemucca on the 15th instant;

The Republicans of the State of Nevada, in Convention assembled, again express their loyalty to the principles of the Republican party, which have made this country so great and prosperous during the last quarter of a contury.

RESOLVED. That the question of a sufficient supply of circulating medium to maintain a permanent range of the price of labor and property is the most important political question awaiting solution by the American people.

That a diminishing quantity of money reduces the price of labor and property, enriches the creditor, impoverishes the debtor, and paralyzes industry and enterprise.

reduces the price of labor and property, enriches the creditor, impoverishes the debtor, and paralyzes industry and enterprise.

That the present financial system of the United States, which increases or diminishes the circulating medium at the pleasure of the manipulators of the national banks, without regard to the increase of population or the wants of the people, and which recognizes gold alone as the standard of value, and places in the hands of the Treasury Department all the revenue of the Government to speculate with in bonds and loan to the national banks without interest, is subsersive of the rights of the people, oppressive, unjust and should be repudiated.

That a financial policy whereby both gold and silv r shall form the basis of irculation, whether the money need by the people be coin, or coin certificates redeemable in coin, or both, as convenience may require, is imperatively demanded.

That the attempt to substitute national bank notes, costing the Government millions of dollars annually, for free silver, costing nothing, is an outrage up n the reople; that the money ring or trust, which has usurped the sovereign power of the Government to issue money, and which has fraudulently demonetized silver and selzed the revenues of the Government for private speculation, shocks the moral sense of the people and destroys respect for gove nment and law. We demand that the xing or trust be destroyed, and equal rights be restored to all the people.

We charge that President Cleveland is the willing tool or agent of a powerful money ring, which fattens on the subsidies of the Government, makes war on silver, issues its paper currency at the expense of the Government, horrows the revenues raised by t xation and uses th m without the payment of interist, contracts the currency to enhance the value of bonds, and enriches usurers, while it depresses the price of abor and property.

That we favor the nomination of no man for President who is personally interested in national banks or the bende riches and iraud

II.

RESOLVED. That we are in favor of the protection of home industry, and that the laborers of this country have a right to all he work required to supply the people of the United States, and that we are in favor of high wages, and to that end will protect the wage-workers from competition with the cheap labor of other lands.

RESOLVED. That the policy of the Government should be inaugurated and established by the pople trough their reprelished by the p ople t rough their representatives in both · ouses of Congress, a not by the President or money trust, w ich he, either as agent or head, is me active in defending. w ich he, either as agent or head, is moss active in defending.

III.

We charge President Cleveland with violating every promise he made in favor of civil service reform, with crippling the mail service, with refusing to aign necessary bills for the improvement of rivers and harbors, with using the power of his administration to prevent appropriations for navy and coast defenses, with attempting to destroy the protective tariff, with courting the good will of other nations at the expense of the citizens of the nited States, and with joining the foreign bondholders to demonetize silver and destroy the industries of his own country, and for the reduction of the wages of the Mint employes at Carson, for closing the Carson Mint when it was not only self-snataining but a source of revenue to the Government, for his contemptuous vetoes of bills for the relief of disabled solders and sailors, and for falling to construct the Government building at Carson as required by law.

We are in favor of the absolute exclusion of Chinese, and of the restriction of immigration by which the overcharged condition of the labor market is made worse, and we favor legislation by which a revision of our naturalization and land laws may be accomplished.

RESOLVED, That we recognize the right of labor to organize for its lawful protection. We favor the appropriations by Congress for hydrographical and topographical sur-veys in this State, to the end that the waste waters may be preserved for the purpose of

We endorse the wise and conservative administration of Governor Stevenson, and we heartliv comment the able efforts of Senators Jones and Stewart and Representative condburn in behalf of the interests ull Text of the Decision of Judge Bigelow in the Case of Van Meter vs. Powell & Poliard. Judge Bigelow has rendered his decision in the suit of Van Meter vs. Powell & Pollard, a case which involved about $5,000, the amount of damages claimed, and the right of defendants to use a d tch passing through the land of the plaintiff. The plaintiff claimed that the seep age, overflow, etc., had damaged his laud in the sum claimed, and in addition he prayed the Court for an injunction restraining the defendants from using the ditch. The decision is as follows: decision is as follows:

(Wood's Law of Nulsances, Section 831, 3 suth. Dam. 425.)

Nothing to the contrary is held in Blaisdell vs. Stephens, 14 Nevada. It was there held that parties who act separately and independently in the creation of something that results in injury to another's premises, are not jointly liable for the damages. Of course, if they are not jointly liable, each must be separately liable for the damages caused by him, or else the injured party is without remedy therefor.

The principal difficulty as to this 80, is to determine how much dannage the plaintiff has sustained by the acts of defendants, for there can be no doubt that, te some extent at least, the ditch overflowed and washed the land, and it appears to washed the land, and it appears to me quite clearly that this was caused by the defendant's attempting to carry more water through the ditch than it would properly carry. At the same time the damage is not very serious, and as a number of witnesses expressed it, as consider the same time the damage is not very serious, and as a number of witnesses expressed it. is so slight that they would have taken no notice of it. The evidence is quite conflicting, and no good purpose would be subserved by attempting to review it here; but after giving it careful consideration I have concluded that forty (40) doliars will propably cover the damages sustained by the plaintiff from the acts of decendants. There is, howants have ever threatened or intend to allow the ditch to overflow in the future as it did in 1887. I eee, herefore, no necessity or reason for granting an injunction to restrain tnem from so doing.

EAST EIGHTY. It is shown that the upper ditch. tion and maintenance of which the plaintiff asks damages, was com-pleted in May, 1882—over five years before the commencement of this action. Digging up the soil and constructing the ditch was a tres-pass upon real estate, and a claim for damages therefor is barred by the three years' clause of the Stat-ute of Limitations.

The right to maintain the ditch constitutes an easement in the land. (Angell on Water-courses, Sec. 142.) (Angell on Water-courses, Sec. 142)

By prescription, this right can only be acquired by five years adverse use, acquiesced in by the plaintiff. His notice of January, 1887, and before the five years had run, shows that he did not acquiesce and consequently, the defendants have not yet acquired a right to The orator who states cold facts must be a believer in freeze speech.

Vaquero saddles a specialty at though all claim for damages arising from its construction is barred.

Entering upon the land and dig-ging the ditch constituted a trespass, which by Gen. Stats. Sec. 3,644, was barred in three years. And even adopting the plaintiff's view of the matter, that it was a continuing trespass, all damages arising prior to three years before the commencement of the action would be barred by the same

But it is claimed that the plaintiff is not enlitted to any damages, for the reason that the construction of the ditch and the consequentia! injury arising from its leaking, constituted a permanent injury to the land for which a full recovery might have been had, as soon as the damage commenced, and that consequently, there was but a single course of action, and one that the course of action, and one that the commencement of this suit. It becomes necessary, then, to define this injury for which plaintiff asks damages.

A trespass is a direct and immediate invasion of property. "A nuisance is distinct from a respass, since it consists in the use of one's Two property in such manner as to cause injury to the property, or other right or interest of another." (Norcess vs. Thoms, 81 Am. Dec.,

Neither this ditch nor the supply therefrom constitutes a nuisance. Et tering upon the plaintiff's land abid digging up the soil for the purpose of constructing it was a direct and immediate injury to the plaintiff's property—a trespass; thereafter running water through the litch was the same, and the see age that came from the ditch the consequential injury that arose from the latter trespass.

The distinction between the injury that arose from the seeping and overflowing of this ditch, and the one on the west eighty, is that there the defendants had acquired a right to maintain it. Here, they had not. Where there is but one course of action, damages may be recovered after the commencement of the action, and up to the time of Neither this ditch nor the supply

Although this overflow was caused by the w ters belonging to a number of different parties this does not prevent the plaintiff from recovering, for the rule is that each person contributing to the creation of a nuisance, is liable for the damages occasioned by biro.

(Wood's Law of Nuisances, Section 831, 3 Sutb. Dam. 425.)

Nathing to the contrary is held.

In Moaks, Underhill on Torts,

329, it is said, even in nuisances: "The rule that a nuisance is a permanent injury does not apply whereby a diversion of a stream of is annually overflowed and his crops injured. Such injury does not go to the entire destruction of the estate, but being of a yearly recurrence is susceptible of periodical apportionment, and may therefore be redressed by successive actions," citing Hoozier vs. Hanni-bal, etc., 70 Mo., 145; Cumberland, etc., vs. Hutching, 65 Mo., 140. I conclude, as to the damages arising for the three years prior to the commencement of the action, the statute has not run.

What damages, then, is the plaintiff entitled to recover for that

On behalf of defendants, it is On behalf of defendants, it is claimed that as the plaintiff only has a contract to purchase the land not yet completed, he is only entitled to recover for what injury he has received to his possession, and not for any sustained by the free-hold, and there are authorities sustained by the free-hold, and there are authorities sustained by the free-hold. taining this view; but I conclude that the weight of reason and authority, under our system of laws, is against the A vendee in possession under such a contract does not

Aud the vendee and not the vendor must recover for an injury to the land. (Ives vs. Criss, 2 Pa. St., 118; S. C. 47 Am. Dec., 401.)

The last is a well considered and well reasoned case, and seems

But this does not include the damages arising from the water flewing upon the courtern portion or plain iff's land from defendants' or plain iff's land from defendants' irrigation. The evidence shows that none of this damage comes from the ditch, while the ditch is the only source of damage alleged in the complaint. The allegata and probata mu-t agree in water eness, as well as in others. (Good vs. Mylin 49 Am. Dec., 493)

Nearly all the damage rising from the ditch had accrued more from the ditch had accruel more than three years prior to the comment ement of the action. If the ditch was the cause of the alkali in that portion of the land upon which the water therefrom seeped and ran, then more than three years before the commencement of the suit, nearly all this damage had been done. In estimating the damages for which the plaintiff can recover, we must take the lami in the condition in which it was on June 30th. ISS, and then determine the condition in which it was on June 30th, 1881, and then determine what damage has accrued to it from the ditch since that time.

I am of the opinion that the weight of evidence in the case, shows, that taking the land in its present condition, the water running upon it is productive of more benefit than injury, but as this has probably not been the case during all of the three years, I find that it has sustained damages during that time to the extent of forty (40) dollars.

In 1887 the defendants en large

(this, of course, because another action can be maintained for them). "But where the injury continues without any further act or motion of the defendant, the injury is a permanent one, for which the plaintiff may recover in one action."

Applying those principles to this case, it follows that for all damages arising from the construction of the ditch but one action could be maintained, because after it was once constructed.

or condemning the right of way at any time.

For three months I find that plaintiff has sustained fifty (50) dollars damages. And without enlarging further upon the case, I find that the character and situation of the land upon the steep and rocky hillside through which the distonments and having the ditch runs, is such as to bring the case fully within the principles enunciated in Thorne vs. Sweeney. 12 Nev., 251, and consequently no injunction should be granted. The Prisoner on the Stand - He Gives His Version of the Trag-

The third day's proceedings of the trial of Charles Graf, the slayer of Joseph Shannon, was not productive of anything in the sensational line, and the large audience in attendance was disappointed. Owing to the long siege of yesterday, supplemented by a night session lasting until 12 o'clock, the lawyers and jurors were somewhat fatigued when the court was called to order this morning, and it was some time before those interested in the case bestirred themselves. The District Attorney was knocked out early in the fray, and was compelled by sickness to retire to the seclusion which his bedroom grants, leaving Judge Boardman the task of presenting the cas; to the jury. Graf was on the stand last night and the greater portion of to-day, and told his story of the tragedy in a straightforward manner. This afternoon Judge Boardman made the opening argument for the prosecution, and was followed by R. H. Lindsay for the defense. The last-named was speaking when the GAZETTE went to press, and as Judge Boardman still has the closing argument to make, the indications are that another night session is in store for the jurors.

It is their habit whenever they see a young lady on hors back to blow their locomptive whistles as shrilly as possible, and derive much enjoyment from witnessing the frantic of the horses to escape from what they think is dire danger. Yesterday about 4 o'clock the enrineer of an east-bound freight blew the locomotive whistle as Mollie Applicate and Minnie Smith, the eleven-year-old daughter of A. J. Smith, were riding home from school, the result being that the horses took fright and Minnie Smith was thrown violently to the ground, sustaining serious injuries to her head and arms. DISMARCE'S VERSATLLES TABLE. How the Great Chancellor Made Sure of Getting It.

I heard an anecdote last week of which Prince Bismarck is the hero, which would tend to show that he does not always gain his ends by the blunt, outspoken means he so often adopts.

When the German army was besieging Paris years ago, Prince Bismarck, like the Emperor and the Crown Prince, of course resided in Versailles, and the lower here. resided in Versailles, and the house he occupied is still pointed out to curious visitors, although its owner has so altered its exterior appearance (it is said from patriotic motives) that Prince Bismarck himself would probably fail to recognize it again. During his forced occupancy of the dwelling Prince Bismarck is reported to have several times come in collision with its patriotic proprietor.

When the time came for the headquarters to leave Yersailles, Prince Bismarck not unnaturally wished to take with him as a historical relic the rosewood writing table on which he had during the occupancy of the house signed so many momentous decrees and made so much his-

So he sent for the proprietor and expressed his wish to purchase the table, which was a very ordinary and inexpensive one, at any reasonable price which might be named. But, not much to the Prince's surprise probably, the proprietor refused to part with the piece of furniture in question. Nor did Bismarck attempt to argue with the man; He merely said, "Very well," and let him go.

But that same night two German soldiers of the Engineer Corps, who chanced to be skilled cabinetmakers, were brought to the Chancellor's house, and within twenty-four hours they had made a table so like the original one which the Drive so like the original one which the Prince wished to take with him that no merely superficial glance would have disclosed any difference between the two. The sequel can be guessed.

Versailles the "Simon pure" table, if I may so term it, was safely packed away with his effects, while the only one left in the embrasure of the bow window of the room the Chancellor had so long occupied was the imitation one that had been made by his orders.

Whether the proprietor of the house detected the fact of the substitution I cannot say, but it is certain that the historical table he refused to sell to the Chancellor is now at Varzin, where it has been duly scheduled among the items that are to be handed down in the Bismarck family as heirlcoms.

Mother Swan's Telegraph.

"The very earliest telegraph in Amer-ica," said great-grandpa, seating himself in his story-spinning chair, and taking Bright Eyes on his knee, "was in active operation in Vermont, while the settlers were doing their best to become actually settled. Mother Swan lived there, in the centre of what is now a flourishing town, but which was then a pathless forest; and, being a widow, was obliged to look out herself for her little garden and live stock.

"Every morning the cows were let out to feed, and went straying away through the woods, and sometimes, by three o'clock, not a tinkle of their bells could be heard. Then Mother Swan's telegraph came into play.

"She had eight children, and these she sent to find the wandering animals; but she did not despatch them together, for then they might easily have become lost in the woods. The youngest child was stationed just far enough from the house for her mother to hear her if she should call; the next in size went only far enough to be able to communicate with the first,

and so the line stretched out.
"When the one at the farther end of the line changed his position, in looking for the cows, he shouted directions back to the next station, and so the line moved to left or right, as the case might be, per-haps ending, before the cows were found, in describing a circle about the house, exactly as that might be done by the minute hand of a clock, the log cabin, with the anxious mother, being at the center of the dial.

At the first tinkle of the cow-bells, 'Found!' cried Number Eight, and 'Found!' repeated Number Seven; and so the news ran along the line, until Mother Swan herself received it. And the little sentinels kept their places until the cows had been collected and driven home, as nearly as might be in the line held by these original telegraph operators."

Cape Cod Folks Abroad.

The story of the Cape Cod youth who spent a week in finding ten cents on the street in Boston, has brought the Listener another story of the Cape Cod boy, who must have been a relative of that one.

He happened to be visiting in Boston, a good while ago, on the Fourth of July, and went out on the Common to see the sights. He returned in an hour or two, looking rather rueful.
"What's the matter, Silas?" he was

"Gosh all hemlocks!" he exclaimed,

"this is the most extravagant place I ever

"What has happened?"
"Wal, you know that quarter of a dol-lar you gave me this morning?"
"Yes. Well?" "Spent it, by hokey, all but twenty-three cents, slap-dash for molasses cake?"

He Got Things Mixed.

An old parish clerk was told to give the following notice: "On Sunday next the service in this church will be held in the afternoon and on the following Sunday it will be held in the morning and so on alternately until

What he actually did read was: "On Sunday next the morning services in this church will be held in the afternoon and on the following Sunday the afternoon service will be held in the morning, and so on to all eternity."

Carbon and Milk.

In spring and early summer milk is apt to have a garlicky or onion-like flavor from some odorous shrub eaten by the

To absorb this peculiar taint drop a piece of wood-charcoal, three or four inches square, into each pan of the fluid, or into the milk-pitcher for table. The carbon very quickly deodorizes the milk, leaving it sweet and pure.

Attention, Dudes.

"Now, then, Fido," said Fido's master,
"would you rather live like a dude or die
like a dog?"

The dog fell down in a heap on the carpet as though dead.
